By Zhanna Reznikova

Cambridge University Press, Cambridge, UK, 2007. Paperback. Book Condition: Brand New. First Edition. Written in an accessible and charming style, and with undergraduate and graduate students in mind, this book should be read by anyone with an interest in the world of animal behaviour. Gives a detailed comparative analysis of different experimental approaches to studying all possible aspects of animal intelligence giving students a complete picture of the complexity of non human behaviour. Considers animal intelligence within the context of animals' natural world including social inter-relations and specificity. Integrates modern...
