Excerpt: . . . EXECUTIVE SUMMARY PURPOSE This study focused on measuring several factors that may influence the health and performance of long-haul freight truck drivers. The data sets will serve as baseline data for future similar studies that may determine whether new truck designs may have changed these factors. PROCESS The evaluated factors were noise level, whole-body vibration ( WBV ) from driver and passenger seats, and the air quality inside the cabin. Noise data were collected continuously during the on-road driving test using an integrating, averaging sound-level meter. Vibration data were collected using transducer pads installed on the driver and passenger seats. For computer modeling purposes, vibration transducers also were installed on the cab and truck frame. However, computer modeling results will not be discussed in this report. The in-cab air quality was evaluated using emission analyzers for carbon monoxide ( CO ), oxides of nitrogen ( NO ), and X particulate matter less than 2. 5-m in aerodynamic diameter ( PM ). The sample of heavy-duty 2. 5 diesel trucks included the latest-model-year vehicles available at the time of the study from four different truck manufacturers. Measurements were conducted while the trucks were parked with the engines idling at a truck-stop rest area and during an actual on-road driving episode that included interstates and State highways, over moderately steep and relatively flat terrains. The parked engine-idling test involved measuring in-cab air quality under several engine and heating, ventilation, and air-conditioning ( HVAC ) modes of operation. STUDY...
