L i i o The Glow-worm. Lily and I often walk in the garden in the summer evenings; and, as it gets dusk, she is always delighted if we find a glow-worm, of which there are plenty about. Doesn t it twinkle, twinkle, like a little star, aunty dear? she says. A Gipsy Encampment. 111 How pleasant the evenings are in the hot summer weather! We used to drive out sometimes after dinner, and I remember one evening we had remained out rather late, till the moon had risen, when we came upon an encampment of gipsies by the road-side. They had a fire, where their supper was cooking, and the smoke was curling up among the trees. They...
